OPEN-ENDED QUESTION AND ANSWER: (Must be a question from the handout--Use each question once!)

Q5. Essay # #4 In the Egypt Game, the antique shop was important to the characters. It gave them a place to play the Egypt Game. The storage yard behind the antique shop provided secrecy for April, Melonie, and all of the other players. It was also filled with interesting places. Also, they thought it was abandoned, so they used old supplies in it to create Egypt.

The antique shop gave supplies for the Egypt Game. They used small tables for altars, and used a stuffed owl on a perch as the Oracle of Shoth. There was even a replica of the famous bust of Queen Nefertiti!

The antique shop had become a special place to the players of the Egypt Game. When a young girl was killed, no kids were allowed to go outside, which made the "Egyptians" disappointed.

When everything was safe, they celebrated their return to Egypt. This shows how they thought of "Egypt" as a magical place. Also, they would not have made friends with the Professor had they not chosen that spot to play the Egypt Game. The antique shop was definitely important in The Egypt Game.
